Symptoms of sinusitis

If you suspect sinusitis, simply tap on the forehead just over the eyes, on the cheekbones, and around the bridge of the nose. If any of these cause pain, the sinuses are probably involved, and the symptoms may fit into one of these two categories:

- Acute sinusitis – The first indication is usually a stuffy nose followed by gradually increasing pressure in the sinuses. In the next 24-48 hours, the stuffy nose becomes runny, and the nasal discharge may contain pus. Other symptoms may include fatigue, sore throat, headache and slight fever. Acute sinusitis is usually caused by the common cold, including viral or bacterial infections of the nose, throat, or upper respiratory tract.

- Chronic sinusitis – With chronic sinusitis, one can expect the same symptoms as with acute sinusitis, but a continual mucus and pus-filled discharge may be present over a prolonged period. This creates a constant inflammation in the mucous lining, which keeps the sinuses from draining properly. A postnasal drip often occurs, creating secondary effects that can cause sore throat, unproductive cough, nausea, poor sense of smell, facial pressure, bad breath, difficulty breathing, and difficulty sleeping. SafeCareRx Sinus Relief™ is designed to provide fast and easy results for both acute and chronic sinusitis without side effects or negative drug interactions. Sinus Relief™ gives fast relief of sinus congestion, sinus pain, sinus pressure, sinus headaches, mucus drainage, dry mucous membrane, stuffy nose, sneezing and upper respiratory allergies.

Causes of sinusitis

Acute sinus infections originate from infection settling into the sinuses during the common cold. To prevent a sinus infection, combat the cold in its early stages with our Head Colds Relief™ formula. This product is designed to heal the nasal environment and prevent infections from setting in.

Lifestyle Management

- Maintain a well-balanced diet, drink eight glasses of water daily, exercise, and get sufficient rest.
- Irrigate your nose and sinuses or use a saline spray.
- Humidify the air.
- Avoid allergens and irritants.
- Wash your hands, avoid sick people, and don't share personal items.

In many chronic cases, an allergic background is often the underlying cause and includes additional symptoms such as sneezing, headaches in the front of the head, watery nasal discharge, and a stuffy, burning, itchy nose.

When allergic responses are an issue, rather than the viral or bacterial development of the common cold, the allergies must be dealt with to actually fix the problem and break the cycle. Such common allergens include anything from hay fever to dust mites and mold spores to foods. Try our Allergy & Hay Fever Reliever™, our regional allergy formulas, or our condition-specific formulas for food and environmental allergies. Lifestyle management, along with the correct SafeCare®Rx formulas to address your underlying sinus issues, will go a long way in providing relief and ultimately correcting the problem.

The logical first choice for sinus correction

The sinuses are cavities that are lined with mucous membranes densely covered with microscopic hair-like cilia that function to protect the body from dust, pollen, germs, and other foreign matter. These tiny hairs move the mucus, along with the foreign irritants, and flush them from the body. Healthy sinuses are able to move the irritants out before they can do any damage. When the sinuses are inflamed and blocked, the irritants stagnate, creating the perfect environment for an infection to set in. Sinusitis refers to any kind of inflammation or irritation of the sinuses, which an estimated 35 million people in the U.S. suffer from.

King Bio® offers a healthy solution: Homeopathy – using the Law of Similars – provides effective results to correct your sinus pain with no side effects.
